

78 Cethana Road, Cethana

A Wilderness Retreat with Incredible Mountain Views

Set on over 11 hectares of Tasmanian wilderness, 78 Cethana Road is a rare find for those who crave space, privacy, and nature at its most dramatic. Towering eucalypts, ancient manferns, and lush gullies of myrtle, blackwood and sassafras surround you, creating a true sanctuary for native wildlife and vibrant birdlife.

As you make your way down the winding driveway, you will cross the headwaters of the Dasher River, a pristine stream that adds to the magic of the approach. The track then opens to a clearing beneath the striking silhouette of Mount Roland, Mount Van Dyke and Mount Claude, with panoramic views that make every day feel like you are living inside a postcard. Wake to mist drifting through the valley, fall asleep under brilliant starry skies, and immerse yourself in the sights and sounds of Tasmania's iconic wilderness.

The unique two storey octagonal home features solid mud brick walls on the lower level, craftsman made double glazed celery top pine windows and doors, polished white cypress pine floors upstairs, and a cosy Norwegian Jotul woodheater. The timber staircase, crafted from celery top pine with myrtle treads, is a standout feature.

While the house offers a solid foundation and incredible character, it does need vision with the kitchen, bathrooms and decks require
