provides that valuable second living space —ideal as a kids' zone, games room, theatre or simply somewhere to retreat at the end of the day.

Accommodation is provided by four bedrooms and two bathrooms, with the main bedroom enjoying its own ensuite complete with a double vanity. Ducted reverse-cycle air conditioning provides year-round comfort, while solar hot water adds another practical inclusion to this well-equipped country home.

Entertaining is well catered for outside, with a semi-enclosed alfresco and adjoining patio providing plenty of space for family gatherings, weekend barbecues or simply sitting back and enjoying the outlook across your own acreage.

For those who need serious storage or workspace, the 18m x 9m powered workshop is sure to impress. Whether it's for the caravan, boat, machinery, project cars, a home-based business or simply an enviable collection of toys, this is the kind of shed that makes acreage living all the more appealing.

Beyond the home, approximately 7.46 acres gives you genuine room to enjoy the rural lifestyle. A bore services household water and irrigation, while the year-round dam adds another valuable feature to the property and reinforces the sense of space and country living.

Despite the rural setting, convenience remains close at hand. The Dardanup townsite is only minutes away, providing access to everyday amenities along with Dardanup Primary School and Our Lady of Lourdes School. School bus services provide further options for families with secondary-aged children, connecting the area with schooling in and around Bunbury.

Weekends are equally well catered for. Head into the Ferguson Valley and explore its wineries, breweries, restaurants and natural attractions, or venture further towards Wellington Dam, Wellington National Park and the surrounding forests, trails and waterways.

It's this combination that makes Dardanup West such a tightly held lifestyle location —enough land to enjoy the space and freedom of country living, without giving up convenient access to schools, town amenities and Bunbury.
