

72 Hillcrest Road, Devonport

Castle On The Hill

There is something deeply dangerous about a home that has been loved by one family since 1957. People walk in and suddenly start imagining Christmas lunches, grandkids in the backyard and arguing over who gets the big shed.. 72 Hillcrest Road feels exactly like that. Built in an era where homes were made to last, this tightly held family property has evolved beautifully over the decades, including a substantial extension that created an enormous second living area at the rear of the home. The result is a floorplan that offers genuine flexibility for growing families, hobbyists, entertainers or anyone craving extra breathing room. Positioned proudly in an elevated pocket of town, the home captures sweeping outlooks across Bass Strait and the rolling Don hills, while remaining just moments from schools, transport and the convenience of town. Inside, the home has been exceptionally well cared for, with many original features still beautifully intact. There's a warmth here that can not be replicated with flat pack renovations and grey vinyl planks. This is a home with soul. Comfortable enough to move straight into and enjoy immediately, yet offering incredible potential for those wanting to modernise over time while working with solid bones and generous floor space. Practicality has clearly always mattered here too. Storage, parking and workshop space are abundant, with undercover parking for up to three vehicles comfortably, including a full garage workshop with electric roller door, additional carport and under house
