Buyers and investors should note the property's potential alignment with the Western Australian Government's proposed planning and density reform drafts. Under current publicly released proposals, changes to R20 planning frameworks may look to reduce the practical thresholds required for two-lot developments on parcels exceeding 700sqm.

At 809sqm, this property offers a generous footprint that may benefit from these proposed regulatory updates if passed in their current form. All development, subdivision, or retaining configurations remain strictly subject to formal Western Australian Planning Commission (WAPC) and City of Joondalup approvals, as well as independent site, crossover, and engineering assessments. Secure a premium coastal lifestyle today with excellent future structural upside.

Disclaimer: All information provided in this advertisement regarding potential subdivision, zoning changes, or development capability refers strictly to proposed state planning reforms which have not yet been finalised or enacted into law. Buyers must conduct their own independent due diligence, seek professional planning advice, and satisfy themselves with the City of Joondalup and the WAPC regarding current and future zoning frameworks before entering into any contract.
