Established in the 1850's, Payneham has a head start on "Newbie" suburbs. It's historic, trendy, private and much loved. Quiet streets, a perfect blend of historic homes, cottages, villas and bungalows with the era of the strata units welcomed by all who aspired to buy in one of Adelaide's enduring suburbs. Many unit blocks are still held by owners or the families of original immigrant builders. Now's the time to write your chapter in Payneham history.

This 1970's built, group of five units has an unexpected, spacious, private park-like area, fenced from street and cars - ideal to sit out and catch the sun, an amazing playground, uninterrupted and safe.

Tightly held, a must to view with open plan living dining area, polished boards, compact kitchen with double sink. The main bedroom to the front of the home has a very generous inbuilt robe, overlooking the lawned view with the second, carpeted double bedroom having a rear courtyard outlook. The bathroom/laundry combo is fresh and has a small bath, handy if looking for a family property. Kids love the bathtime routine.

With little to do, as it's a fuss free option, spend your time creating memories at the many upmarket foodie locations scattered throughout this and surrounding suburbs of Glynde, Stepney and the famed Norwood Parade. It's Adelaide's undisputed leading High Street (we're biased) along with Magill and Payneham Roads and loads of events, galleries, tours and trails or stumble across a brand new bar on the "Eastside Wine and Ale Trail" or "Food Secrets" a culinary trail where you can meet hands on artisan producers, boutique coffee roasters, classic manufacturers, or the next gen of food gurus, micro-breweries, and urban wineries throughout Payneham and surrounds. Less than 5 km to the city, close to the amazing parklands & River Torrens Linear Park - it's all about doing, discovering and immersing yourself in the best of the best food, fashion, amenities and services. Adelaide CBD and Rundle Mall minutes away.

Leading schools and colleges from the Zoned Trinity Gardens Primary School and Marryatville High School to historic St Peters College, St Andrews at Walkerville, Loreto College, Pembroke and St Ignatius, all held in high regard are in close proximity.
