

14 Sheen Street, Roslyn

"The Summit" - Historical Elegance

Situated in the heart of Roslyn, this four-story home is a rare presence with architectural significance. Designed by Mandeno & Fraser in 1930 for Hugh Speight-of the famed Speight's brewing family-this stately residence offers 340m² (approx.) of versatile floor space, blending original character with modern comfort.

Set back from the street on an established 841m² section, the upper levels of the property capture panoramic views across Dunedin city and harbour. Inside, the floor plan features three spacious bedrooms (main with adjoining sunroom), three separate living areas-each offering flexibility to repurpose as a study, additional bedroom, or formal retreat if needed. The inclusion of a butler's pantry in the spacious kitchen, and thoughtfully arranged living zones reflect the considered design of its era, while the basement garage and workshop provide excellent utility and storage space.

Character features remain a standout throughout-oak, rimu, and beech panelling, decorative ceilings, leadlight windows, and ornate fireplaces have been carefully retained. A radiator central heating system, in addition to the heat pump and multiple open fires, provide warmth and atmosphere across the seasons.
