- Hedge foliage for privacy in courtyard

Often sought and rarely found is a townhouse of this scale; the ground floor is wide and spacious, with ample room for lounge and dining adjacent to the updated kitchen with new handcrafted Tasmanian Oak benchtops and stainless appliances throughout including tapware, dishwasher, oven and cooktop. Ducted air keeps a cool climate throughout, while fresh internal paint and downlights assist in the modern feel of the home. Windows dressed in security screens and blinds run the length of three of the four walls in this space drawing in natural sunlight and breezes, taking advantage of the North-South orientation of the floorplan.

Upstairs the new paint job continues a fresh feel, with brand new carpet enhancing these areas further; three double bedrooms each with ceiling fans and built-in-robos are serviced by a central and spacious main bathroom with shower over bath. The main bedroom has its own ensuite and North-facing balcony as well.

The courtyard is immaculately kept with low-maintenance hedging creating a lush foliage aspect from the lower level, and surrounds a covered entertaining space, currently housing an outdoor dining setting as well as a bar and BBQ space. The addition of a ceiling fan and outdoor blinds make for attractive entertaining year-round.

Harlen Road is a cul-de-sac address in a flood free locale, within walking distance to bus stops, Hedge Café, Cups and Wells café, food works, Salisbury State School, St Pius, Brisbane Christian College and the train station as well. This is a home I know you are going to love in a small quiet complex of only ten; contact Nick Bowen today to arrange your inspection, or you might just miss out!
