About Thorneside:

Thorneside is a tightly held bayside suburb just over 2.5km² in size, with over 15% of the area devoted to parks and green spaces. With a strong community feel and steady population growth. The suburb is popular with professionals and childless couples, as well as families that want to be near the water and train. Property values have surged, with units increasing in median value by an impressive percentage.

You will find some old bayside charm here as well as the cooling breezes which have long lured visitors to Redlands Coast. Long foreshore parks provide recreational outlets for all the family, with barbecues, playgrounds and walking and cycling paths.

Pockets of significant koala habitat and sporting fields add to the charm of bayside Thorneside. This includes William Taylor Sportsground, Aquatic Paradise Park, Beth Boyd Park, Wynnum Redlands Canoe Club, Frank Street Bushland Refuge and Jack and Edna Finney Reserve.
